

Start-ups and small businesses to benefit as MFB launches its new Maritime Small Business Unit

MFB has launched a new Maritime Small Business Unit, to offer legal and related services specifically tailored to encourage and benefit start-ups and small businesses in the marine sector. Corporate partner Jonathan Watson comments: "We set up this unit because we felt it could bridge a gap for start-ups and small businesses which are often forced to choose between a small law firm for the short term, with fewer available resources, and one that is larger and more expensive. The unit allows start-ups and small businesses to benefit from a dedicated, personalised service from one of London's top shipping firms, to grow their business profitably and with access to our extended range of outsourced services through our network of accounting, banking and insurance professionals."
